STERLINGTON

Holtzclaw, Talbert to challenge Velasquez for mayor

BY LORYN KYKENDALL
loryn@ouachitacitizen.com

Sterlington voters in the Nov. 8 election will entertain three candidates for mayor of Sterlington after Mayor Caesar Velasquez drew two opponents during qualifying last month.

The two people who filed paperwork to become candidates were: Sterlington Town Council member Matt Talbert and former Town Council member Lucy Holtzclaw.

Meanwhile, four members were elected to the Town Council last month and a fifth member is expected to be appointed soon.

Velasquez said he wanted to help Sterlington continue growing and set up the town for success.

“I want people to know I’m not a politician,” said Velasquez. “I’m going to do for the town of Sterlington what they voted me in to do—represent them. We’ve come a long way from the day that I took office. We’re in a lot better financial status than what we were before.”

“Sterlington is my only job,” said Velasquez. “But I don’t call it a job. It’s a labor of love.”

Velasquez said he wished both Talbert and Holtzclaw luck during their campaigns.

“The people of Sterlington will speak out as to who they want to represent them and we’ll see who that is,” said Velasquez.

Talbert, who has been a Town Council member for nearly four years and is the general manager at Rick Breens’s Rapid Lube & Wash in Monroe, is currently setting up meet and greets to get to know voters.

“We’ve got a lot going on in Sterlington, and there’s a lot that needs to be done,” said Talbert. “So we’ll be meeting with the people and laying those plans out in the future.”

If elected, Talbert said he planned to rebuild the police department and take care of the town’s debt. He also said he wanted to bring more business to Sterlington and provide “transparency” to the people.

“I’ve done that as alderman,” said Talbert. “I post every agenda, I let people know what’s going on in town, and I think that’s vital to the success of a town.”

Talbert said the most important thing for voters to know about him is that he was going to listen to them.

“I’m committed to moving Sterlington forward,” said Talbert.

Holtzclaw served on the Town Council for eight years until she campaigned for mayor against Velasquez in 2018. Velasquez defeated Holtzclaw in that race by fewer than 20 votes.

Holtzclaw said her love for Sterlington is what made her the best candidate.

“I want to see Sterlington continue to grow and I have not seen that,” said Holtzclaw.

If elected, Holtzclaw said she wanted to make Sterlington a more inviting place for new businesses.

“We are growing. We have the population and we have the people in our town to support other businesses,” said Holtzclaw.

Holtzclaw has owned her business, Holtzclaw Photography, for 30 years.

“I have been in business since I was 19-years-old, so this doesn’t scare me,” said Holtzclaw. “I know this is going to be a challenge, but challenge accepted.”

During Holtzclaw’s campaign, she said she planned to meet and talk with as many people as possible so they could get to know her if they did not already.

“I have been involved in Sterlington for all my life,” Holtzclaw said. “I’m already involved with the community and I’m involved with the schools. I have the heart of Sterlington and that’s who I am.”

TOWN COUNCIL

Meanwhile, only four candidates qualified to campaign for Sterlington Town Council, which normally has five members.

Incumbents Zack Howse and Billy Clarkson along with newcomers Charles Hodnett and Erica Gross were all elected to Town Council.

According to Howse, who is in his fourth year as a councilman, the four elected members will take office in January and a fifth member will be appointed until another election can take place.

Howse said that while Sterlington has made a lot of progress, there was still a lot to be done.

“Our goal has always been to eventually lower sewer rates,” said Howse. “Same thing with taxes. We need to get some of this debt handled and show some relief to our citizens.”

Clarkson, who has served on the Town Council for just over one year, said he wanted to see population growth, infrastructure changes and new businesses.

“I want to make sure I do the best that I can to support Sterlington and make every change for the goodness of our town,” said Clarkson.

Gross, who plans to begin her first term in January, is a worship minister at First West-Fairbanks Campus in Monroe. She said one of the reasons she decided to run was because the Town Council needed a female perspective.

“It’s important to have different opinions and for that board to be as diverse as it can be,” said Gross.

Gross said communication with citizens was one of her biggest goals as a member on the Town Council.

“I’ve talked to several people who’ve said they feel like there needs to be better communication,” said Gross. “I’m looking to make sure our citizens are informed about what’s going on.”

Hodnett, who also planned to begin his first term next year, said most of his work experience was in retail management.

“I don’t have any political experience at all,” said Hodnett. “We moved here for the culture that Sterlington has. The neighbors are friendly, the focus is on children and education, and I just want to ensure that it stays that way.”

As far as changes in Sterlington, Hodnett said he just wants to help Sterlington continue to grow.

“I want to help continue to beautify the community and continue to grow it in a positive way,” said Hodnett.

BONNER RE-ELECTED

In the Sterlington Police Chief election, Barry Bonner was re-elected without opposition.

Bonner has served as police chief for 18 years. He said his biggest goal right now is to build the police department back up.

“When the administration took over after the last election, one of the first things that happened was they got rid of the Sterlington Police Department, all except for one or two officers,” said Bonner.

Bonner said the police department has been struggling to get back up to their previous number of officers, which was about ten.

“Our goal is to get the numbers back up so we can service the community 24/7 like we’re supposed to,” said Bonner.

Newly passed Louisiana laws in effect as of Aug. 1

Most new laws passed by Louisiana legislators during the annual legislative session went into effect on Aug. 1.

Included among the numerous laws that became official this week are Act 391, which upholds fundamental rights to freedom under the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, and Act 473, which upholds 4th Amendment protections against unreasonable searches.

Act 391 by Rep. Rodney Lyons, D-Harvey, outlaws debt-based incarceration, also known as debtors’ prisons, in Louisiana. While the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that debt-based incarceration is a violation of the 14th Amendment in the 1983 Bearden v. Georgia case, it still occurs in Louisiana and elsewhere around the country. There has been a national movement in recent years to officially outlaw it at the state level by passing laws in state legislatures and through rulings by state supreme courts.

“With Act 391, we have made it clear that no one should end up in jail in Louisiana because they can’t afford to pay debts to the state,” said Lyons. “Incarceration only makes the problem worse—along with violating people’s freedoms, it costs the state money to keep someone locked up and, obviously, they aren’t able to earn money to pay debts while in jail. There are plenty of more productive options available, including community service and realistic debt payment plans.”

Act 473 by Rep. Marcus Bryant, D-New Iberia, bars law enforcement from using marijuana odor as a pretext for searching someone’s home without a warrant. According to the Fourth Amendment, “The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.”

Bryant said searching someone’s home without a warrant because you claim to smell marijuana is a clear violation of the Fourth Amendment.

“Hopefully this law will bring peace of mind to medical marijuana patients, especially our military veterans, who will now know they are safer from police intrusions into their homes,” said Bryant.

Acts 391 and 473 were just two of more than 20 bills that Louisiana Progress worked on during the 2022 Louisiana legislative session. You can find a full rundown of all of those bills, as well as a general overview of the entire session, in the Louisiana Progress 2022 Legislative Session Report.

Access to original birth certificates restored for La. adoptees

BY ALEX TIRADO
LSU Manship News Service

Living almost seven decades without any information about her birth, Rebecca Browning never thought she would learn more about where she came from.

Now, thanks to a bill approved during the 2022 legislative session, Browning is able to access a key to her past.

House Bill 450, now Act No. 470, took effect earlier this week, and it allows adopted persons 24 years of age or older to obtain a copy of their original birth certificate.

Browning was adopted at six months old from Catholic Charities in New Orleans. She grew up in Baton Rouge and remembers a fairytale kind of life spent playing in the front yard with her sister, dancing with her parents in the living room and roasting marshmallows in the fireplace.

As much as Browning adored her adoptive parents and her life, she is excited to know more about portions of her life left unanswered.

“I think that everybody has the God-given right to know where their journey began,” said Browning. Referring to her birth parents, she added, “I would love to know their names, and I would love to know what my name was and exactly where I was born.”

Before 1977, an adoptee could obtain his or her original birth certificate in Louisiana without any hindrance. But lawmakers concerned about birth parents’ privacy passed a law then sealing an adopted person’s original birth cer-

*Left: THE LOUISIANA Coalition for Adoption Reform team worked for two years with Rep. Charles Owen to get HB450 in the right posture to become law. tificate after a final decree of adoption and stating that it could be opened only by court order.

Act No. 470 creates a simplified process, allowing an adopted person to request a copy of his or her original birth certificate from vital records without the costly burden of going to court.

The law also allows the relinquishing parents to file a contact preference form, included in an adoptee’s request for their original birth certificate, specifying whether they want to be contacted.

Several bills mirroring House Bill 450 were brought before the Legislature in the past but failed to become law.

The new law, authored by Rep. Charles Owen, R-Fort Polk, received a majority of votes in both chambers and survived hours-long debates in committee hearings.

Some lawmakers voiced concerns that the bill did not respect the privacy of birth parents and opened the door for unwanted reunions.

Getting the bill through the Legislature was a task that Elise Lewis, a lead advocate with the Louisiana Coalition for Adoption Reform, described as a marathon.

“It’s not like we walked in going, ‘Oh, this is gonna be a piece of cake,’” said Lewis. “We worked really hard and spent many hours talking to legislators and answering legislators’ questions.”

Jeanette Livingston, chair of the Louisiana Adoption Advisory Board, worked alongside Lewis in advocating for the bill.

Livingston, sharing her view as a mother who relinquished rights to her child, emphasized that the bill was about adult adoptees who deserved to learn more about themselves and not about the birth parents.

“I just really think that they needed to hear our point of view,” said Livingston. “It should be a personal choice for the adoptee.”

Lewis, who was adopted herself, believes the new law solves a huge inequality for adoptees trying to access something as simple as a birth certificate.

“For me, just having that birth certificate, seeing all the information on it, it’s the truth,” said Lewis. “It’s your truth. It’s your beginning. I think everyone is entitled to the truth of their origins, plain and simple.”

While someone’s place of birth and birth name may seem like basic information, it is an invaluable piece of knowledge to adoptees like Browning.

Browning described growing up wondering where she was born and what traits she inherited from her birth parents.

“When you’re adopted, you’re like, ‘Where did I come from,’ you know, and sometimes you think ‘who do I look like,’” said Browning.

Louisiana is the 11th state to pass a law restoring adoptees’ rights to access their original birth certificates, and Lewis hopes that the state will set an example for its neighbors to follow.

“This is a chance for Louisiana to shine,” said Lewis. “We’re hoping that Mississippi and Texas will look and say, ‘Wow, look what Louisiana did, that’s awesome.’ Let’s treat adopted people equally.”

Eager to fill in the blanks of her past, Browning already sent a request for her birth certificate and is elated to know other adopted people can have a complete understanding of who they are.

“When I was filling out the paperwork a week ago to send to vital records, I cried,” said Browning. “There were just so many emotions that this was going to happen, and that we would feel like we came from someone, and we would know who they were, and it’s been very exciting.”
